

BIOGRAPHICAL STATEMENT

Matthew Graham

Matthew Graham has been a geographer and researcher with the Longitudinal Employer-Household Dynamics (LEHD) program at the U.S. Census Bureau for five years. He currently manages the bureau's OnTheMap application, a recent winner of the Director's Award for Innovation. Matthew received his Master's degree in Urban Planning from UCLA, where he conducted and published research on GIS, economic development, and public health. He also has degrees in physics and mechanical engineering from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and taught physics in Tanzania as a Peace Corps volunteer.